LAW ON COMMERCE

PRESIDENT TAFT SENDS A SPECIAL MESSAGE TO CONGRESS TODAY.

RECOMMENDATIONS IN PREMISES

Favors a United States Court of Commerce Clothed With Exclusive Original Jurisdiction Over Certain Cases.

Washington, Jan. 7.—President Taft's special message, dealing with amendments to the interstate commerce laws, looking to a more effective federal supervision of the railroads, and conveying his recommendations for the passage of federal incorporation act, was transmitted to congress today and read in the house, the senate not being in session.

The message followed closely the forecasts that have been made, and in the suggested legislation as to railroads embodied all of the suggestions the president has made from time to time in his speeches on the subject.

Among other things the message says:

I recommend the establishment of a court of the United States composed of five judges designated for such purpose from among the circuit judges of the United States, to be known as the "United States Court of Commerce," which court shall be clothed with exclusive original jurisdiction over the following classes of cases:

(1) All cases for the enforcement otherwise than by adjudication or collection of a forfeiture or penalty, or by infliction of criminal punishment, of an order of the interstate commerce commission other than for the payment of money.

(2) All cases brought to enjoin, set aside, annul or suspend any order or requirement of the interstate commerce commission.

(3) All cases under section 3 of the act of Feb. 19, 1903, known as the "Elkins act," are authorized to be maintained in a circuit court of the United States.

(4) All such mandamus proceedings as under the provisions of section 20, or section 23 of the interstate commerce law are authorized to be maintained in a circuit court of the United States.

Reason specially analogous to those which induced the congress to create the court of customs appeals by the provisions in the tariff act of August 5, 1909, may be urged in support of the creation of the commerce court.

In order to provide a sufficient number of judges to enable this court to be constituted, it will be necessary to authorize the appointment of five additional circuit judges, who, for the purposes of appointment, might be distributed to those circuits where there is at the present time the largest volume of business, such as the second, third, fourth, seventh and eighth circuits.

The act should empower the chief justice at any time when the business of the court of commerce does not require the services of all the judges to reassign the judges designated to that court to the circuits to which they respectively belong; and it should also provide for payment to such judges while sitting by assignment in the court of commerce of such additional amount as is necessary to bring their annual compensation up to $10,000. The regular sessions of such court should be held at the capital, but it should be empowered to hold sessions in different parts of the United States if found desirable; and its orders and judgments should be made final, subject only to review by the supreme court of the United States with the provision that the operation of the decree appealed from shall not be stayed unless the supreme court shall so order.

The commerce court should be empowered in its discretion to restrain or suspend the operation of an order of the interstate commerce commission under review pending final hearing and determination of the proceeding, but no such restraining order should be made except upon notice and after hearing, unless in cases where irreparable damage would otherwise ensue to the petitioner.

In my opinion all litigation affecting the government should be under the direct control of the department of justice; and I therefore recommend that all proceedings affecting orders and decrees of the interstate commerce commission be brought by or against the United States as nomine, and be placed in charge of an assistant attorney general acting under the direction of the attorney general.

In view of the complete control over rate making and other practice of interstate carriers established by the acts of congress and as recommended in this communication, I saw no reason why agreements between carriers subject to the act, specifying the classification of freight and the rates, fares and charges for transportation of passengers and freight, which they may agree to establish, should not be permitted, provided copies of such agreements be promptly filed with the commission, but subject to all the provisions of the interstate commerce act, and subject to the right of any parties to such agreement to cancel it as to all or any

TO CLOSE TONIGHT

THE UNION EVANGELISTIC SERVICES INCIDENT TO THE WEEK OF PRAYER.

GOOD ATTENDANCE DURING WEEK

Rev. Dudley M. Clagett Preached Last Night and Was Introduced as the Oldest Minister Now in the City.

The union evangelistic meetings held this week at the Fifth Street Methodist church, South, close tonight. Considering the condition of the streets and severe weather, they have been well attended. The music has been good, and the sermons by the several ministers have shown a grasp of the vital truths of the Christian faith he'll in common by the churches, until the audiences forgot there were differences or church lines drawn anywhere in our city.

The sermon last night was by Mr. Clagett, who was introduced by Mr. Cooper as the oldest minister in Sedalia. This, of course, was understood from the point of service, and judging by the estimation in which he is held by his people he will be retained for years to come.

The sermon presented the requisites of a Christian; those every man should possess. The emphasis was laid upon the fact that one must have a profound belief, but that belief should have exercise in service. Jesus held to His great Oneness with God, but did not forget His mission was to man.

The public is invited to the closing service at 7:30 tonight.

ATTACKED BY A CAT

Mrs. Sophia Dorn Was Seriously Injured Last Night.

Mrs. Sophia Dorn, mother of Emil Dorn, the well known laundryman, was attacked by a large Maltese cat at her home, 1022 West Third street, at 10:30 o'clock last night and dangerously injured.

Dr. W. J. Ferguson was hurriedly summoned, and on examining the injuries ascertained that the feline had bitten Mrs. Dorn in eleven different places on the right forearm, besides severely scratching her right hand.

The wounds were dressed, but the patient suffered exceeding pain last night. Today it is reported that she is resting as well as could be expected.

At the hour the attack occurred Miss Amelia Dorn, a daughter, started for the basement to put a puppy dog to bed. Mrs. Dorn followed her, and when on the rear porch noticed a strange cat.

Being fond of pet animals, Mrs. Dorn began petting the feline, when it suddenly attacked her.

The wounds are dangerous, and the outcome cannot be determined at present.

IS NOT SO COLD TODAY

The Mercury Has Climbed From 6 to 12 Degrees.

Kansas City, Jan. 7.—There was a decided rise in the temperature in this part of the southwest in the twenty-four hours ended today, the mercury climbing upward from 6 to 12 degrees, with wind from the south. Trains are still late, but the service is improving.

THEY'RE OFF!

THE TRUST LAWS

THEY ARE THE SUBJECT OF SPECIAL MESSAGE FROM PRESIDENT TAFT.

IT WAS SENT TO CONGRESS TODAY

We Should Permit Concentration of Capital, but Keep Open the Avenue of Individual Enterprise.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—Under the heading, "The Anti-Trust Law and Federal Incorporation," the president says in part in a special message to congress today:

The increase in the capital of a business for the purpose of reducing the cost of production and affecting economy in the management has become as essential in modern progress as the change from the hand tool to the machine.

When, therefore, we come to construe the object of congress in adopting the so-called "Sherman anti-trust act" in 1890, whereby in the first section every contract, combination in the form of a trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of interstate or foreign trade or commerce, is condemned as unlawful and made subject to indictment and restraint by injunction; and whereby in the second section every monopoly or attempt to monopolize, and every combination or conspiracy with other persons to monopolize any part of interstate trade or commerce, is denounced as illegal and made subject to similar punishment or restraint, we must infer that the evil aimed at was not the mere bigness of the enterprise, but it was the aggregation of capital and plants with the express or implied intent to restrain interstate or foreign commerce, or to monopolize it in whole or in part.

Monopoly destroys competition utterly, and the restraint of the full and free operation of competition has a tendency to restrain commerce and trade. A combination of persons, formerly engaged in trade as partnership or corporations, or otherwise, of course eliminates the competition that existed between them; but the incidental ending of that competition is not to be regarded as necessarily as a direct restraint of trade, unless of such an embracing character that the intention and effect to restrain trade are apparent from the circumstances or are expressly declared to be the object of the combination.

A mere incidental restraint of trade and competition is not within the inhibition of the act, but it is where the combination or conspiracy or contract is inevitably and directly a substantial restraint of competition, and so a restraint of trade that the statute is violated.

It is possible for the owners of a business of manufacturing in selling useful articles of merchandise so to conduct their business as not to violate the prohibitions of the anti-trust law and yet to secure for themselves the benefits of the economies of management and of production due to the concentration under one control of large capital and many plants. If they use no other inducement than the constant low price of their product and its good quality to attract custom and their business is a profitable one they violate no law. If their actual competitors are small in comparison with the total capital invested in the prospect of investments of capital by others in such a profitable business, they are not violating the statute. HE TRIED 9 WOMEN

REJECTED THEM ALL AFTER A TIME AND WAS MARRIED TO THE TENTH.

PRAISE WAS TURNED TO TAUNTS

Kansas City Divorce Petitioner Was Once Told She Excelled Others, Says It's a Different Story Now.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 7.—After giving nine applicants for his hand in marriage a month's trial each, to prove their worth as housekeepers, and having rejected them for the tenth, Frank Bowman, aged 47, 1828 Kansas avenue, has been able to keep the one he chose as his bride only six months.

Having tried the nine women just long enough to find out their virtues, Bowman was "spoiled" as a husband, according to his wife, and became too conscious of the faults of the woman he finally chose. She couldn't stand the strain of his constant domestic science criticism, she says.

Now Lucy E. Bowman, his bride of last August, has sued him for divorce.

"I want a housekeeper that I can marry," he told me," said Mrs. Bowman. "I have tried nine on this understanding and they have all failed to measure up to my standards. I like your looks and I am willing to try your abilities as a housekeeper for a month."

"I told him that I was really looking for a place to work and that I did not desire to marry him. He prevailed upon me to come anyway, and by the end of the month I had become so attached to his three children that I consented to marry him."

"At that time he was thoroughly satisfied with the way I cooked and managed the children and the house. He said that I did everything better than any of the other nine housekeepers had done. In fact, he liked me so well that he threatened to kill himself if I didn't marry him. He said that months of experimenting had caused him much disappointment, but that I had compensated for all."

But no sooner had the marriage been celebrated than Mrs. Bowman's troubles began. She didn't make as good coffee as Miss White had done; she couldn't "fix up" the two little girls as well as Mrs. Fletcher had done, and Miss Murphy had managed the grocery buying better than his wife was doing.

Soon to Leave Maywood.

Prof. J. H. Gehrs, principal of the California, Mo., public schools, who is a patient at Maywood hospital, following the amputation of a limb, is getting along very nicely, and will be able to leave the hospital within two weeks.

Rev. Grant Robbins' "Book Sermon."

It is the custom of Rev. Grant A. Robbins to preach once a year a sermon on "Books and Reading." These sermons have usually created considerable interest in the community where delivered. Mr. Robbins will deliver this sermon Sunday night at the First Methodist Episcopal church.

Four Above Zero at 6 A. M.
The thermometer in front of the Bruce pharmacy, Fourth and Ohio streets, registered four degrees above zero at 6 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Waldman Quite Ill.
J. Waldman, the clothier, is reported to be seriously ill at his home on Moniteau avenue.

NOT PARTY ISSUE

DRYS WILL NOT ASK FOR AN ENDORSEMENT AT KANSAS CITY MEETING.

SAYS THE TIME IS NOT YET RIFE

Professor Million, Missouri Referendum Backer, Says Political Parties Should Steer Clear of Issue.

Mexico, Mo., Jan. 7.—In an interview here yesterday, John W. Million, president of Hardin college, a member of the executive committee of the Missouri Constitutional Amendment association, and also chairman of the finance committee of this organization, which is preparing to submit a referendum amendment in favor of prohibition at the election next November, said there would be no attempt to get any political party in Missouri to endorse the dry campaign of 1910. He said:

"The dry campaign in Missouri is not backed by any party, that is not yet, and we hope it will not be."

"So far as I know the harmony of the democrats at the meeting in Kansas City Saturday night will not be disturbed by any request from the drys for indorsement in any way."

"In my opinion, it will be the wisest politics for both of the great parties in this state to steer clear of a formal indorsement of either the dry or wet side at this time and for some time to come."

"The fight is to be waged upon a moral and economic basis, material, to be sure, suitable for the main planks of a political platform."

"But in the popular mind these principles are not sufficiently clear cut to justify action at this time on one side or the other by either of the great parties."

HOW ABOUT YOUR WALK?

Did You Clean the Snow and Ice From It, as Directed.

Following the official order of Chief of Police W. H. Boult, that all property owners who failed to clean their sidewalks would be arrested, hundreds of families last evening and today cleaned the snow and ice from the sidewalks surrounding their homes, but in spite of this there are still some who have failed to comply with the order.

Chief Boult has instructed all of his assistants to arrest every property owner who neglects to comply with the order.

Many people are complaining that the frozen condition of the snow on their walks makes it impossible to clean them, but a small quantity of coarse salt will melt the snow, making the removal easy.

MIKE DOHERTY MAY SING

Left This Afternoon for Kansas City to Attend Convention.

Col. Mike Doherty, the well known Green Ridge stockman, was in the city today and left this afternoon for Kansas City, where he will be one of the prominent attendants at the democratic convention tomorrow.

"If they want me to make an address I'll do it," Col. Mike said this morning, "but I would much prefer to sing a solo," he continued, as he gave one of those hearty good-cheer laughs so conspicuous in his make-up.

NOT SEE HANGING

MRS. JACKSON'S MOTHER CAN NOT WITNESS PUNISHMENT OF NEGROES.

HER HUSBAND IS TO BE PRESENT

One Hundred Invitations Will Be Issued by the County Marshal—Not a Woman Is to Witness the Execution.

Kansas City, Jan. 7.—Mrs. Vera Henry, mother of Mrs. W. H. Jackson, made application to the county marshal yesterday to see her daughter's assailants hanged. The request was filed by her son-in-law, W. H. Jackson. Mrs. Henry probably will not be permitted to witness the hanging.

"No woman will be allowed to see Reynolds and Williams hanged," said James P. Gilwee, chief clerk in the marshal's office, yesterday. "The executions will be as private as possible. Several women have applied for admission, but never before were they permitted at hangings and they will not be allowed this time."

Mr. Jackson himself has filed an application. He will be reserved a place near the ropes. The husband also asked that his brother, E. C. Jackson, of Fort Scott, Kan., J. W. Flanagan, trainmaster for the Frisco, and Mrs. J. W. C. Boone and I. E. Ruhl be admitted.

One hundred invitations will be issued by the marshal after the death penalty is confirmed by the criminal judge, and will be sent to those who file applications meeting with approval.

It is not unusual for women to witness executions of criminals. When "Bill" Taylor, the banker, was hanged at Carrollton, Mo., for the Meeks family murder, probably a dozen women witnessed the death.

WILL HELP THE POOR

Many Anxious to Assist Those Who Are Really Destitute.

Following the publication last evening that the Democrat-Sentinel had inaugurated a campaign to help the poor, numerous responses came to this office from persons desiring to take a hand in the undertaking and help those who are destitute.

The proposed work has met with general approval by all, but no help will be extended unless the appeals for aid come through some responsible person. In other words, applications direct from the destitute to this office will not be handled.

Some one in authority, who is familiar with the circumstances of those applying, must make application for assistance, in which event help will be given.

Rev. Atwill, rector of Calvary Episcopal church, says: "I shall be glad personally to receive the names of families who need help."

THE FIRST TO RESPOND

Count Jos. Paradis in for Assistance to the Destitute.

Jos. Paradis, the meat dealer, 'phoned the Democrat-Sentinel last night that he desired to have his name entered on the list of those who will financially assist Sedalians who are in distress by reason of the continued cold weather.

Mr. Paradis was the first to respond to the appeal. He read the article in the Democrat-Sentinel while riding home in a street car, and 'phoned his desire in the premises even before he had removed his overcoat.

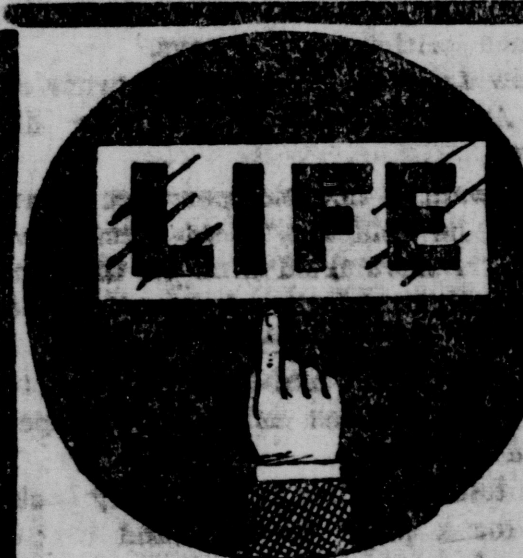

This is what the Democrat-Sentinel calls "practical christianity." Would there were a larger number of people patterned along the same lines.

JOHN WHITAKER DEAD

Supervisor of Census for the Seventh District.

Weanbleau, Mo., Jan. 7.—John Whitaker, founder of Weanbleau Christian college and supervisor of census of the Seventh congressional district of Missouri, died at his home here at 6:30 o'clock of pneumonia.

Mr. Whitaker was one of the best known republicans in Missouri, and was the party candidate for congress in this district at the last election.

This question interests everybody,
including the physicians, these days.
Surgeons General George H. Torney, of the army, and P. M. Rixey, of the navy, have issued bulletins, telling how to avoid colds.Surgeon General Walter Wyman, of the public health and marine hospital service, also has come out with a crusade against colds.Their work reveals the fact that no body of medical men will agree on just what causes people to become victims of colds in various forms.
While millions are coughing, the government is studying various cures for influenza.The Floyd-Lucas treatment for bad
colds is being tried on the navy's hospital ships this winter. Drs. Cleav-land Floyd and William P. Lucas, of the Harvard medical school, were guided in their work by Metchnikoff,
the Russian germ expert. He believes that colds are caused by lack of white corpuscles in the blood.
When these leucocytes, as they are called, are below standard pneumonia will set in.Dr. Rixey has received a report of the doctors' work in the Massachusetts general hospital. Out of forty one cases of pneumonia and bad
colds treated by their methods, thirty-six recovered at once. Their treatment is by the injection of the white corpuscles of human blood. After the corpuscles get into the victim's veins
they wiggle their way into the system and rout out the cold microbes.Another cure that the government will try is the "dry cure." It should be very popular at this start of the new year, for the patient taking the treatment mustn't drink anything for
from twenty-four to forty-eight hours.
Bread, fish, vegetables, white meat
and eggs may be eaten, though. Dr.
Ronne, of Paris, and Dr. Steinberg, of Vienna, indorsed this cold cure.Still another cure comes from New York. A doctor there thinks that whisky shelters the cold microbes. He says that smooth-shaven men takecold less easily than men with must-aches or beards. His cold cure is simple. All one has to do is to get shaved—that is, if he hasn't been shaved already.Thus the cures go on. There is a cold cure for every day in the year,
yet nobody in the service of Uncle
Sam seems to be agreed on the best treatment.THE MILK TRUST INQUIRY.Of all the trusts, the milk trust, now undergoing investigation in New York, is probably the least entitled to public esteem, since it seeks to grind
its profits from those who can least afford to pay.In defense of Standard Oil, generally accepted as parent of all the trusts, it was urged that trust methods were really beneficent from the standpoint of the consumer, since
only by an extraordinarily high capitalization could the oil be extracted from the earth, piped or hauled to the centers of distribution and placed on the market.This argument also was advanced
in the case of the copper, steel, sugar
and most of the other trusts; and,
because it seemed plausible, was accepted in most quarters. It was at least a "talking point," and served
to temper the rigors of the opposition. But what can be said in behalf of the milk trust?In all of the larger cities the price
of milk has been advanced to nine cents a quart, and cream has gone up 2 cents the halfpint.On account of this advance it is estimated that the city of Chicago
alone will pay $3,500,000 a year more
for its milk and cream than before the new schedule went into effect.At the New York inquiry Wednesday District Attorney Whitman remarked that the milk companies of that city will pay dividends three times as large as heretofore.It is presumed that the trust magnates will urge the increased price of feed in extenuation of their course,
but since the new scale went into effect early last fall, when the cows were yet in pasture, this argument loses much of its cogency.Alfalfa and red clover continue to grow as cheaply as ever, in cheerful defiance of trust regulations.CANDY AND MUSCLE.The value of sweets as a part of the rations of a soldier is well known.
Now the director of the gymnasium
of the University of Michigan announces that sweets shall figure in the menu of the man in athletic training. They must be pure sweets, however, and the director declares that if this purity is assured they make good muscles, clear eyes, good complexions, good digestions and good men.The director's recommendation is backed by the leading coach of the school, who has gone so far as to tell the girls of the basketball team to eat all the pure confections they desire.This does not mean that gumdrops
are to be carried onto the football field, as arctic explorers carry them
into the regions of ice. This ruling,
however, ought to be extremely popular among the basketball teams of collegiate young women.Not Yet Out of Danger.Edward Zoellig, clerk for Justice J.

of the agreed rates, fares, charges,
or classifications by thirty days' notice in writing to the other parties
and to the commission.Much complaint is made by shippers over the state of the law under which they are held bound to know
the legal rate applicable to any proposed shipment, without, as a matter of fact, having any certain means of actually ascertaining such rate.I think that the law should provide that a carrier, upon written request
by an intending shipper, should quote
in writing the rate or charge applicable to the proposed shipment under any schedules or tariffs to which carrier is a party, and that if the party
making such request suffer damage
in consequence of either refusal or omission to quote the proper rate, or in consequence of a misstatement of the rate, the carrier shall be liable to a penalty in some reasonable amount,
say two hundred and fifty dollars, to accrue to the United States and to be recovered in a civil action brought
by the appropriate district attorney.
Such a penalty would compel due diligence in quoting the applicable legal
rate, and would thus afford the ship-
per a real measure of protection,
while not opening the way to collusion and giving of rebates or other
unfair discrimination.Under the existing law the commission can only act with respect to an alleged excessive rate or unduly discriminatory practice by a carrier
on a complaint made by some individual affected thereby. I see no reason why the commission should not be authorized to act on its own initiative, and I recommend the amendment of the law to so provide.Under the existing law the commission may not investigate an increase in rates until after it shall have become effective. On the other hand, if the commission shall make an order finding that an existing rate
is excessive and directing it to be reduced, the carrier affected may, by proceeding in the courts, stay the operation of such order of reduction for months and even years.It has therefore been suggested that the commission should be empowered whenever a proposed increase in rates is filed, at once to enter upon
an investigation of the reasonableness
of the increase and to make an order postponing the effective date
of such increase until after such investigation shall be completed.To this much objection has been made on the part of the carriers.
They claim this would be, in effect,
to take from the owners of the railroads the management of their properties and to clothe the interstate commerce commission with original
rate making powers.Experience has shown that many,
perhaps most, shippers do not resort
to proceedings to recover the excess rate which they may have been required to pay, for the simple reason that they have added the rates paid
to the cost of the goods and thus enhanced the price thereof to their customers, and that the public, in effect,
has paid the bill.I therefore recommend that the interstate commerce commission be empowered whenever any proposed increase of rates is filed, at once to enter upon an investigation into the reasonableness of such change, and that it be further empowered, in its discretion, to postpone the effective date of such proposed increase for a period not exceeding sixty days beyond the date when such rate would take effect. If within this time it shall determine that such increase is unreasonable, it may then either forbid the increase or fix the maximum, beyond which it shall not be made. If, on the other hand, at the expiration of this time, the commission shall not have completed its investigation, then the rate shall take effect, precisely as it would under the existing law, and the commission
may continue its investigation with such results as might be realized under the law as it now stands.The president says he knows of no reason why a shipper should not have the right to elect between two or more established routes, to which the initial carrier may be a party, and to require his shipment to be transported to destination over such routes as he may designate for that purpose. He recommends that section 15 of the interstate commerce act be so amended as to permit of this.Hot Water Bottles.Guaranteed grades at best prices at

The vaudeville feature at the Lyric

BAR DIVORCE NEWS

CONGRESSMAN PAT MURPHY, OF MISSOURI, HAS AN ORIGINAL SCHEME.

HE'D SEND PUBLISHERS TO JAIL

Also Wants a Prison Sentence for Lawyers Who Advertise Through the Mails to Secure Divorces.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Representative A. Pat Murphy, of Missouri, wants congress to enact a law which would impose a penitentiary sentence of two years on newspaper publishers who print, as a matter of news, court proceedings in divorce trials. He believes that the publication of such matter is demoralizing and should be stopped.

Mr. Murphy introduced a bill in the house yesterday calling for this reform. The measure does not stop at divorce proceedings, but includes all cases of a scandalous nature which sometimes appear on the docket of trial courts. He would have the censorship established through the medium of the postal laws, the prison punishment being applicable where publishers circulate their papers containing the objectionable matter through the mails.

There is no room for doubt when so many people of good standing are anxious to tell their friends of the great good received from the use of Root Juice. At this point many have been cured, or greatly benefited, of rheumatism, catarrh, indigestion, female weakness or some liver, kidney or stomach trouble. No wonder one friend is often heard advising another to try Root Juice. If you bloat and belch, if food lays heavily on the stomach and pains, if what you eat does not give you strength, if you have swimming of the head, if you are nervous and your entire system is run down, if you are restless at night and feel as tired in the morning as you did when you went to bed, be governed by the experience of others and go to the drug store, get a bottle of Root Juice and take it exactly according to directions. We predict that before you have used one bottle you will be advising your sick friends to get some of this wonderful medicine, for Root Juice always proves all that is claimed for it. IN WITH SUGAR TRUST

Testimony Said to Show Arbuckles Have Price Agreement.

New York, Jan. 7.—Trade rivalry between the American Sugar Refining Co., Arbuckle Bros. and others was but a surface ripple for appearance. In reality, trade agreements to control prices existed, as indicated by coincident increases in prices.

This in effect is the gist of the testimony given before the federal grand jury yesterday in an attempt to ascertain that conditions existed warranting a charge of violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The foregoing is outlined in a story which will be printed in the Tribune tomorrow. The Arbuckles have been considered the most serious rivals of the American Sugar refining Co.

WHY HE LOVES HIS COWS

Herd of Ten Gave 450,000 Pounds of Milk in a Year.

Kirkville, Mo., Jan. 7.—Ten cows belonging to Carl Gherke, a farmer four miles southeast of Kirkville, gave 450,000 pounds of milk last year. From this milk 2,664 pounds of butter was made, which brought the owner of the cows $821.09. The cows consumed $407.31 worth of feed during the year, leaving Mr. Gherke a net profit of $413.78.

But enough butter, cream and milk was taken out of the amount furnished by the herd to supply a family of four persons and the skimmed milk and manure brought enough to pay for the labor in caring for the cows and making the butter. Mr. Gherke says that he had only eight cows during the summer and that four of the total ten were 2-year-old heifers.

Gherke is a German. He came to the United States when he was 13 years old. He said that he lived long enough in Germany to learn that a cow was the most valuable thing on the farm and that a good farmer thinks almost as much of his cow as he does of his wife.

Peace disturbers	535	202
Arrests for drunks	1,492	435

If putting the saloons out causes more whisky and beer to be consumed, why do the brewers put so much money into the campaign fighting the dry progress? Why do they spend $100,000 in one single election to keep their income of $1,000,000 a year coming in? When prohibition does not prohibit, you have officers that are drawing a salary without work. DISCOVERY MADE UNDER NEW YORK BANK CONTAINING $10,000,000.00.

Police Find Entrance in Basement When Looking for Missing Man —It Caused a Monumental Sensation.

New York, Jan. 7.—Last Wednesday evening Isaac Finkelstein, a painter, who lived with his family at 53 Ludlow street, went into the cellar of the house next door at 6 o'clock, saying that he was going to get a bundle of wood for the stove. There is a six-story building next door that has not been occupied yet. It was reported that Finkelstein had been accustomed to go to the cellar often and come back with kindling wood. Finkelstein did not return that night, and yesterday morning Isador Garves, a brother of Mrs. Finkelstein, was told by the latter of her husband's disappearance.

Garvis ran to the Elbridge street police station. He told the lieutenant that he had been in a cellar of the building at 55 Ludlow street and that he had heard groans there. It must be Finkelstein groaning. Police headquarters was notified and Garvis went with several policemen to the cellar.

Garvis and the police descended the ladder leading to the cellar. They discovered a large hole in the front wall and a tunnel leading from it across Ludlow street as far as they could see.

The bottom of the cellar was covered with loose earth, which had evidently been thrown there by the persons who dug the tunnel. Building Inspector Reville entered the tunnel with difficulty, for the mud was slippery and the passage small, just large enough to admit a grown man's body.

Straight ahead crawled the inspector until suddenly he was forced to turn sharply to the right. He followed the front wall of the building for a few feet, and then he began to drop lower and lower; it became also darker and darker.

All of a sudden there was a great dip and the inspector found the tunnel led directly across the street in the direction of a jewelry store and a bank, in the vaults of which was stored $10,000,000.

Inspector Reville approached a cave-in about 25 feet from the mouth of the tunnel, and he decided not to attempt to go any further. There was more tunnel, he was certain; but it was terribly dark and cold and wet, so he turned around with great difficulty and crawled back on his hands and knees. The police arrested Garvis as a suspicious person.

Bags of loose earth were found in Finkelstein's rooms. It was decided to dig to the top of the tunnel by ripping up the street. Workmen removed the flagging from the sidewalk and worked out toward the middle of the street. Police lines were formed, for a large crowd of East Siders gathered.

The excavation in which the shovellers are working takes in the curb on the west side of the street and extends about a foot into the roadway. In the corner of the main hole Foreman Gallagher of the diggers found a crevice which apparently led to Finkelstein's tunnel.

The plan was to get down as soon as they could to the base of Finkelstein's tunnel and then proceed along it until they came to Finkelstein himself, if he is there.

Mrs. Eads Was Hostess.

The Ladies' Aid society of the East Broadway Christian church was entertained by Mrs. George Eads at her home, 418 South Engineer avenue, last afternoon.

There was a good attendance and the ladies decided to serve a lunch and supper on the day of the missionary rally on January 18.

After the business meeting, refreshments were served.

Mrs. W. J. Musick will be the next hostess for the club members.

MRS. COLE'S GOOD WORK

As Secretary of the Associated Board of Charities.

Sedalia's destitute were well remembered during the month of December, according to figures submitted today by Mrs. Eula Cole, secretary of the Associated Board of Charities.

Mrs. Cole's receipts for money spent on the poor during the past month show that $509 was expended in helping those in need, not including $50 collected at the Dr. Torrey evangelistic services some weeks ago and $16 donated by private parties.

Besides these amounts the Sedalia lodge of Elks expended some $400 for the poor, making the total expenditures almost $1,000.

Mrs. Cole has done splendid work as secretary of the board of charities, and the Democrat-Sentinel has never heard a single word of criticism of the manner in which she has performed her duties.

SCENE FROM "ST. ELMO"—AT THE SEDALIA THEATER MONDAY NIGHT.

"St. Elmo."

"St. Elmo," the story which, though written years ago, is in steady demand in all the public libraries today, is to be told in a play. A special company has been formed to present it through this region. The players have been selected with careful attention to the great dramatic possibilities of "St. Elmo." The dramatization is by Miss Grace Hayward, who converted the popular romance, "Graustark," into a most successful play. "St. Elmo" contains many interesting characters, including St. Elmo Murray, who confessed he was not quite a brute, nor altogether a malicious and vindictive devil, but a man who had "hopelessly lost his character." That he had not hopelessly lost it was stirring revealed and this is the dramatic texture which is going to make "St. Elmo" a play of interest to many people. "St. Elmo" will be presented at the Sedalia theater next Monday night.

business is sufficiently near and potential to restrain them in the prices at which they sell their product. But they if they attempt by a use of their prepondering capital and by a sale of their goods temporarily at unduly low prices to drive out business of their competitors or if they attempt by exclusive contracts with their patrons and threats of non-dealing except upon such contracts, or by other methods of similar character to use a largeness of their resources and the extent of their output compared with the total output as a means of compelling custom and frightening off competition then they disclose a purpose to restrain trade and to establish a monopoly and violate the act.

The object of the anti-trust law was to suppress the abuses of business of the kind described. It was not to interfere with the great volume of capital which concentrated under one organization, reduced the cost of production and made its profit thereby and took no advantage of its size by methods akin to duress to stifle competition with it.

I wish to make this distinction as emphatic as possible, because I can see that nothing could happen more destructive to the prosperity of this country than the loss of that great economy in production which has been and will be effected in all manufacturing lines by the employment of large capital under one management. I do not mean to say that there is not a limit beyond which the economy of management by the enlargement of plants ceases; and where this happens and combination continues beyond this point the very fact shows intent to monopolize and not to economize.

The president reviews several decisions of the supreme court on the anti-trust statute, and continuing says the supreme court in several of its decisions has declined to read into the statute the word "unreasonable" before "restraint" on the ground that the statute applies to all restraints and does not intend to leave to the court the discretion to determine what is a reasonable restraint of trade.

The value to a statute, continues the president, which is rendered more and more certain in its meaning by a series of decisions of the supreme court furnishes a strong reason for leaving the act as it is, to accomplish its useful purpose, even though if it were being newly enacted, useful suggestions as to change of phrase might be made.

It is the duty and purpose of the executive to direct investigation by the department of justice through the grand jury or otherwise into the history, organization and purpose of all the industrial companies with respect to which there is any reasonable ground for suspicion that they have been organized for a purpose and are conducting business on a plan which is in violation of the anti-trust law. The work is a heavy one, but it is not beyond the power of the department of justice, if sufficient funds are furnished, to carry on the investigation and to pay the counsel engaged in the work.

But such an investigation and possible prosecution of corporations, whose prosperity or destruction affects the comfort not only of stockholders, but of millions of wage-earners, employees and associated tradesmen, must necessarily tend to disturb the confidence of the business community, to dry up the now flowing sources of capital from its places of hoarding and produce a halt in our present prosperity that will cause suffering and strained circumstances among the innocent many for the faults of the guilty few.

The question which I wish to bring clearly to the consideration and discussion of congress is whether, in order to avoid such a possible business danger something can not be done by which these business combinations may be offered a means without great financial disturbance of changing the character, organization and extent of their business into one within the lines of the law, under federal control and supervision, securing compliance with the anti-trust statute.

Generally, in the industrial combinations called trusts the principal business is the sale of goods in many states and in foreign market; in other words, interstate and foreign business far exceeded the business done in any one state. This fact will justify the federal government in granting a federal charter to such a combination to make and sell in interstate and foreign commerce the products of useful manufacture under such limitation as will secure a compliance with the anti-trust law.

Many people contacting a great business have cherished a hope that in some way a line may be drawn between "good trusts" and "bad trusts," and that it is possible by amendment to the anti-trust law to make a distinction under which good combinations may be permitted to organize, suppress competition, control prices, and do it all legally, if only they do not abuse the power by taking too great profit out of the business. They point with force to certain notorious trusts as having grown into power through criminal methods, and urge the establishment of some legal line of separation by which "criminal trusts" of this kind may be punished, and they, on the other hand, be permitted under the law to carry on their business. The business public ought to rid themselves of the idea that such a distinction is practicable or can be introduced into the statute. Certainly under the present anti-trust law no distinction exists.

In considering violations of the anti-trust law, we ought not to forget that that law makes unlawful methods of carrying on business which before its passage were regarded as evidence of business sagacity and success. In dealing therefore with many of the men who have used the methods condemned by the statute for the purpose of maintaining a profitable business, we may well facilitate a change by them in the method of doing business and enable them to bring it back into the zone of lawfulness without losing to the cost of production has been materially lessened and in competition with foreign manufacturers our foreign trade has been greatly increased.

Through all our consideration of this grave question, however, we must insist that the suppression of competition, the controlling of prices and the monopoly or attempt to monopolize in interstate commerce and business are not only unlawful, but contrary to the public good, and they must be restrained and punished until ended.

I, therefore, recommend the enactment of a general law providing for the formation of corporations to engage in trade and commerce among the states and with foreign nations, protecting them from undue interference by the states and regulating their activities so as to prevent the recurrence under national auspices, of those abuses which have arisen under state control. Such a law should provide for the issue of stock of such corporation to an amount equal only to the cash paid in on the stock; and if the stock be issued for property then at a fair valuation ascertained under approval and supervision of federal authority, after a full and complete disclosure of the facts pertaining to the value of such property and the interest therein of the persons to whom it is proposed to issue stock in payment of such property, it should subject the real and personal property of such corporations to the same taxation as is imposed by the states within which it may be situated upon other similar property located therein, and it should require such corporations to file full and complete reports of their operations with the department of commerce and labor at regular intervals.

Corporations organized under this act should be prohibited from acquiring and holding stock in other corporations.

ations (except for special reasons upon approval by the proper federal authorities), thus avoiding the creation under national auspices of the holding company with subordinate corporations in different states, which has been such an effective agency in the creation of the great trusts and monopolies.

If the prohibition of the anti-trust act against combinations in restraint of trade is to be effectively enforced, it is essential that the national government shall provide for the creation of national corporations to carry on legitimate business with the United States. The conflicting laws of the different states of the union with respect to foreign corporations, make it difficult, if not impossible, for one corporation to comply with their requirements so as to carry on business in a number of different states.

To the suggestion that this proposal of federal incorporation for industrial combinations is intended to furnish them a refuge in which to continue industrial abuses under federal protection, it should be said that the measure contemplated does not repeal the Sherman anti-trust law and is not to be framed so as to permit the doing of the wrongs which it is the purpose of that law to prevent, but only to foster a continuance and advance of the highest industrial efficiency without permitting industrial abuses.

The president enumerates several objections that might be expected to be made to such a national incorporation law and in considering them says in part:

The government is now trying to dissolve some of these combinations and it is not the intention of the government to desist in the least degree in its effort to end those combinations which are today monopolizing the commerce of this country; that where it appears that the acquisition and concentration of property go to the extent of creating a monopoly or of substantially and directly restraining interstate commerce, it is not the intention of the government to permit this monopoly to exist under federal incorporation or to transfer to the projecting wing of the federal government the state corporation now violating the Sherman act. But it is not and should not be the policy of the government to prevent reasonable concentration of capital which is necessary to the economic development of manufacture, trade and commerce. This country shows a power of economical production that has astonished the world and has enabled us to compete with foreign manufacturers in many markets. It should be the care of the government to permit such concentration of capital while keeping open the avenues of individual enterprise and the opportunity of a man or corporation with reasonable capital to engage in business.

President Taft concludes as follows: "A federal compulsory license law, urged as a substitute for a federal incorporation law, is unnecessary except to reach that kind of corporation which by virtue of the considerations already advanced, will take advantage voluntarily of any corporation law while the other state corporations doing an interstate business do not need the supervision or the regulation of a federal license, and would only be unnecessarily burdened thereby.

The attorney general, at my suggestion, has drafted a foreign corporation bill embodying the views I have attempted to set forth, and it will be at the disposition of the appropriate committees of congress.

NEWS OF THE RAIL

KNAPP AND NEILL, OF THE MEDIATION BOARD, GET NO STRIKE RESULTS.

COACH, CAB AND CABOOSE ITEMS

Matters of Interest Picked Up From Various Sources for the Benefit of Democrat-Sentinel Readers.

The following statement was made public at Washington, D. C., late last afternoon.

"Nothing has resulted from the meetings held here with Mr. Perham, president of the Order of Railway Telegraphers and head of the railway branch of the American Federation of Labor, and the mediators, Chairman Knapp, of the interstate commerce commission and Commissioner of Labor Neill, have abandoned any further effort to bring about a settlement of the switchmen's strike in the northwest."

This decision was reached at a conference late yesterday between the mediators and Mr. Perham. Neither the strikers nor the railroad companies could be induced to yield from their positions or to accept an offer of arbitration.

Mr. Perham was keenly disappointed by his failure to bring about a settlement. He had a conference in the afternoon with Chairman Knapp, but it resulted in nothing.

Subsequently the statement of the mediators announcing the abandonment of present efforts to bring together the strikers and railroad officials was given to the public.

Mr. Perham expressed astonishment at the statement, and at once sought another interview with Chairman Knapp. The latter confirmed the statement to Mr. Perham, but assured him that if the mediators could be of any service at any time in the future they would be not only willing, but glad, to act.

Mr. Perham said afterwards that, while the mediators apparently had abandoned their efforts to bring about an adjustment, he proposed to stick to it.

He did not disguise his annoyance at the turn the affair had taken, but gave no intimation as to what he proposed to do.

Will Hear "Grievances."

G. H. Gibson, a Missouri Pacific conductor, and chairman of the O. R. C. grievance committee in Sedalia, and Walter Mann, chairman of the B. of R. T. grievance committee, will go to St. Louis next Monday, on which day a meeting of the chairmen of the various O. R. C. and B. of R. T. divisions will be held.

On Sunday, January 16, the chairmen of the engineers' and the firemen's grievance committees will be held at St. Louis.

Ran as a Double-Header.

M. K. & T. southbound flyer, No. 5, had a "double header" this morning, as a result of two extra cars which were added to the train to do away with the running of a second section of the flyer.

Engineers Dillon and Bowser were in charge of engines Nos. 336 and 341. The train was in charge of D. J. Temple, and carried nine cars.

Burning Train Makes Record.

Making a record breaking run from Sherman to Denison, the Houston & Texas Central passenger train arrived at Denison yesterday with the mail car a mass of flames.

The local fire department was called, and, after hard work, extinguished the blaze. The car was badly damaged, but no mail lost.

Burial at Blue Lick Springs.

The remains of William P. Short, an M. K. & T. shopman, who died from pneumonia at his home, Sixteenth street and Lamine avenue, Wednesday night, were shipped to Houston this morning, where funeral services were held, after which burial was made at Blue Lick Springs.

Mr. Short was 43 years of age and leaves a widow and three children.

New Depot at Myrick.

The Missouri Pacific station at Myrick, that is in course of construction, has the town wondering what the intentions of the Goulds and Vanderbilts are. Myrick has been a junction point of the old Lexington branch division of the road. Present passenger traffic does not warrant such a station as is being erected, and it is thought by some that industries will be established to make the town more of a business center.

Katy Director Dead.

Col. R. C. Foster, capitalist and railroad promoter, a director of the M. K. & T., died at Denison, Texas, last night, aged 76 years.

TRULY HAD A CHECKERED CAREER

Simeon Hudson, Blind From Drinking
Wood Alcohol, Is Regarded at Tecumseh, Neb., as a Desperate Character.

Tecumseh, Neb., Jan. 7.—Few men
of his age have had a career more filled with crime than has Simeon Hudson, the young prisoner in the Nebraska penitentiary, who has just become totally blind from the effects of drinking wood alcohol for the sake of intoxication.

Hudson, who is a tall, fine looking young man, is 26 years of age. He comes from a good family in Iowa,
and is serving a sentence of five and one-half years for forgery, having been sentenced by Judge Killig, of the Johnson county district court, in October, 1907.

In June, 1907, Hudson came to this city to visit relatives living near town. He was attired in typical cowboy dress and wore a .44 revolver in his belt. He was sized up as a "smart aleck," but turned out to be a bad type of desperado.

About the time he came here he cashed two forged checks in Tecumseh, one for $22 on the Citizens National bank and one for $18 on the First National bank. The checks were made out to "John Ziegler," and were made over the forged signature of E. W. Fuller, a lumberman, of Vesta. Hudson endorsed the checks and got his money.

The bankers became suspicious,
and went to look for Hudson, who, in the meantime, had gone to Sterling,
where he tried to cash another check,
but was not successful.

He hired a saddle horse at the livery stable there, saying he wanted it for a day, rode it first to Cook and then to Burr, trying to cash checks
at both places, without success.

A short time later it was learned

A TICKLISH MOMENT

that Hudson was at the home of his uncle, John Kramer, who lived south of this city. Sheriff H. U. Miner went out to arrest the young man, but Hudson put up a fight and shot Miner in the shoulder with his revolver,
making him helpless.

At the muzzle of his revolver, Hudson warned the sheriff not to follow
him, and he went to the barn, mounted a horse and rode away.

Miner returned to Tecumseh, where he was given surgical attention, and
the report of the shooting stirred the citizens into great excitement.

A big posse was formed here and another at Pawnee City, including dozens of men and boys, all heavily armed, which proceeded to a timbered spot some eleven miles south of here and a man-hunt was engaged in
for twenty-four hours. But Hudson was not found. His horse was found picketed near a little stream, and marks on the ground showed where the fugitive had slept the night before. The Beatrice bloodhounds arrived on the scene, but insisted on leaving the woods. Later, when Hudson was apprehended, he told the officers
that several of the hunting party had passed near his hiding place, and that he proposed to "get" at least two or three of them while they were "getting" him. He said he would not have been taken alive.

In July, 1907, Sheriff Miner got a telegram from the sheriff at Casper,
Wyo., saying that Hudson was in Kansas, and that he, the sheriff,
would deliver him to the Johnson county authorities if they would meet him at Kinsley, and that he claimed the reward of $200 for the apprehension of the man, which had been made here.

Requisition papers were applied for and Sheriff Miner and deputy went to Kinsley, where they met Sheriff Shaffner, of Casper, but here they were confronted by more trouble.

They found Hudson in jail, serving a fifteen days' sentence for carrying concealed weapons on the streets of Kinsley. Both the marshal of the Kansas town and the sheriff were aware of the fact that a reward had been offered for Hudson, and they also knew they had the right man.
They refused to give him up until the reward money was paid, and it took a direct order from Governor Hoch to enable the Johnson county officers to get their man.

He was secured and brought to Tecumseh and later taken to the penitentiary
at Lincoln, as the county attorney did not deem the jail sufficiently secure. The officers feared Hudson, and every time he was taken from the jail he was handcuffed and chained to an officer, while a second officer also accompanied him.

At the October term of the district court Hudson was taken before Judge Killig on a forgery charge. He pleaded not guilty, but afterwards

changed his plea, confessed his guilt
and threw himself upon the mercy
of the court.

He was sentenced, as stated, and taken back to the penitentiary at once. It developed that at the time Hudson came to Tecumseh he was an escaped convict from the Iowa penitentiary. He had been sentenced to a forgery charge, paroled and broke the parole by running away
and coming to Nebraska.

After his experience here he went to Casper, where his brother, Stanley Hudson was captured and afterwards
served a term in the Colorado penitentiary
for his offense.

Simeon Hudson evaded the officers and hid in the sheep camps for a few weeks, after which he went to Kansas and was apprehended at Kinsley.

The matter of who is entitled to the reward of $200 for the capture of Hudson has never been settled, although the case has been in the courts since that time. The county paid the money into the court
to be given to the rightful claimant.

Work of the "Graveyard Committee."

Washington, Jan. 7.—With Representative Richard Wayne Parker presiding as chairman, the house committee on the judiciary held its first business meeting today.

At the last regular session the judiciary committee, under the chairmanship of Representative Jenkins, of Wisconsin, became known as the "graveyard of legislation," because of the many big bills and resolutions
that died and were buried there.

A BALL AND BANQUET

It Was Given by Local Lodge of Machinists Last Night.

The second annual ball and banquet of Sedalia lodge No. 71, International Association of Machinists, last night, was a grand success in every detail, and compliments galore were showered on the committee which had so successfully engineered the event.

The dance, which was attended by fully two hundred couples, was given at Colonial hall. The Second Regiment orchestra furnished music for the twelve regular and four extra dancing numbers, and punch was served during the evening.

At 10 o'clock the guests repaired to
the parlors of the Blackman hotel,
where Mrs. A. M. Blackman, the proprietress, had prepared one of the daintiest banquets ever served in this city.

The hostelry was decorated with carnations, ferns and smilax, and the menu was one of rare excellence. It was in the wee sma' hours when the guests began departing for their homes, voting the affair the most delightful they had ever attended.

States. He is the only one of the long list of chief magistrates whose birth anniversary comes in the first month of the year. He was born 110
years ago, and was inaugurated sixtyone years ago, following the death in office of President Zachary Taylor.

LEARNED MEN MET

BEGAN CONFERENCE TODAY TO
POSSIBLY ADOPT A NA-TIONAL LANGUAGE.

ADVOCATES OF VARIOUS TONGUES

The Question Under Discussion Is Fraught With Many Difficulties
—Be In Session for Several Days.

Constantinople, Jan. 7.—A conference of all the learned men of the empire was commenced here today to consider the adoption of a national language. Advocates of the various tongues will deliver addresses, and
the sessions will probably continue to next Thursday, which is the Moslem New Year. The question under discussion is fraught with many difficulties, and has already resulted in threats of revolution.

Altogether, there are about ten different languages in the Ottoman empire, representing as many different nationalities. Numerically, the Arab speaking peoples are the strongest of any faction, not excluding the Turks
themselves, who take second rank.
Next in succession come the Armenians, the Greeks, the Bulgarians, the Albanians, the Kurds, and the rest of them.

A curious fact about the Kurds is that, up to the time of the granting of the constitution, they had a spoken
but not a written language. They are unruly nomads, whom Abdul Hamid could not restrain except by creating them a body of the imperial cavalry. They put up a strenuous fight upon the deposition of the sultan, and only of late have their leaders succeeded in pacifying them.

The Arabs declare that the majority should be favored and that their should be the national language. The whole population of the Ottoman empire does not exceed 32,000,000, 17-000,000 being Arabs and Arabic speaking peoples, while the Turks
hardly number 7,000,000.

The Turkish language, furthermore,
is strictly confined to these 7,000,000,
while the Arabic is spoken by over 30,000,000 outside of the Ottoman empire, Egypt, Algeria, Morocco and the whole northern section of Africa
being Arabic speaking countries.

Still further, there is the fact that the Arabic is the language of the Koran, and naturally the religious language of the Moslems.

Followers of the Prophet Mahomet
all over the world, in India, China,
Persia, Afghanistan, the Caucasus
and Southern Africa deliver recitations of the Koran in Arabic. The Arabs consider this the weightiest reason why their language should be adopted as the national language of the empire.

What started this ever-growing controversy is the discussion as to which language should be adopted for the deliberations of parliament. Representatives from the outlying districts of Arabia and Asia Minor, and those from the different countries of the Balkan peninsula, found themselves unable to understand each other through any other language, so
the Turks stepped in and declared that the language of the ruling class
should be the common language of the subjects, and they insisted upon holding the debates in parliament in Turkish.

The Arabs have seventy-five representatives among a total number of 265, mostly controlled by the organization of Union and Progress, and the Arabs lost. They have, however, continued the fight, so that now it has assumed extensive proportions.

DR. COOK IS A FAKER

So Voted the Local Lodge of Elks at Meeting Last Night.

The Elks' social session at the club rooms last night was attended by more than one hundred members
of the order, the affair being universally pronounced one of the most enjoyable ever attended.

The program as outlined in last afternoon's Democrat-Sentinel was carried out, to the sad regret of "Dr.
Cook," whose alleged visit to the north pole was proven false, in spite of the strenuous efforts of his attorneys, C. C. Kelly and A. L. Short-ridge, to substantiate his claims.

During the evening the Ideal quartette rendered several selections, followed by the serving of refreshments

HONOR FOR AVIATORS

Francois Blanchard, First Man to Cross British Channel.

Paris, Jan. 7.—French and English
aeronauts and aviators joined today
in a commemorative meeting to do honor to Francois Blanchard, the first man to cross the English channel in a balloon.

Although not generally known,
Blanchard was accompanied on that flight by an American, a native of Boston. Dr. John Jeffries, one of the notable physicians of his time, who was born in 1745 and returned to his native home, where he died in 1819,
after an extended residence in London, where he went after the battle
of Bunker Hill, for his sympathies
were entirely with the British during the Revolution.

Aeronautics was attracting a great deal of attention at that time, and
Dr. Jeffries was so interested in the subject that he persuaded, chiefly by the gift of 100 guineas, the French balloonist, Blanchard, to let him go
as a passenger on the Channel balloon flight.

It took place January 7, 1785, and on the landing place in France, near the spot rendered memorable by the meeting between Henry VIII. and King Francis I. of France, a monument surmounted with a figure of a balloon was erected.

YOUNG GIRL IS MISSING

Letter Offering Her a Chance on the Stage.

San Antonio, Texas, Jan. 7.—A letter offering "a chance to go on the stage" is thought to be responsible for the disappearance of Ruby Sapp,
a 14-year-old girl of this city.
The girl is the daughter of D. F.
Sapp, 1994 Pennsylvania avenue, this city, and she has been missing since last Sunday.

It is claimed that the young woman became infatuated with a member of a certain theatrical company in this city some time ago, and that letters
from him have lured her away.

A warrant charging abduction is in the hands of the authorities.

BIRD SANG AT FUNERAL

Members of the Choir Listened With Bowed Heads.

Independence, Mo., Jan. 7.—A funeral was held in Independence the other day that will not be forgotten by those who attended it for a long time. While the friends of the one who had passed away were paying him a last tribute of respect the sweet and plaintive song of a little canary echoed throughout the still house of its dead master.

The minister near the open casket had offered a last prayer and the singers were softly chanting a requiem, when above their voices rose that of the little yellow plumed pet, whose singing had so delighted the one who was dead.

Not a note had been chirped during the prayer or the few brief words of consolation which the minister had spoken, but during the chorus of the last hymn the little pet began to sing and one by one members of the chorus ceased to sing and listened with bowed heads to the song of the bird who would know its master no more.

WILL DINE PEARY

HE IS TO BE THE GUEST OF THE AUTOMOBILE CROWD AT THE UNION CLUB.

BIG BLOWOUT TOMORROW NIGHT

No Fewer Than Seventeen Advertisements, With Peary Recommendations, Appeared in a Single Magazine Issue.

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

New York, Jan. 7.—Commander Robert E. Peary, the alleged discoverer of the top of the earth, is in our midst today, and will be given a square meal by the automobile crowd at the Union club tomorrow night. The gallant naval commander who carried the Stars and Stripes to the north pole (somehow, that doesn't sound quite original, but it is still good for tremendous applause when orated at a banquet) will be wined and dined and praised, and there will be no meddling Cook to spoil the banquet.

Many automobile advertising men will be present, and they should be able to get some valuable pointers from the gallant, etc. The truism that "it pays to advertise" should appeal to Commander Peary, who has recently shown himself a past master of the art. In a single issue of a prominent magazine for this month appear seventeen advertisements, most of them full-page, in which the discoverer lends his name to the product advertised. It is to be presumed that these testimonials were voluntarily written by Mr. Peary, without hope of reward, but there are some who doubt it.

First on the list of Peary products is an encyclopedia and atlas, which he has found "invaluable in his explorations." Next comes a flat globe of the world, personally edited by Mr. Peary, which he modestly alleges is "the most accurate and up to date system of geographical reference in existence." A certain variety of bottle he found to be of "great utility," and hastens to spread its praises to a waiting world.

Nor are we left in ignorance as to the kind of razor the brave explorer used in shaving himself "with much satisfaction" on board the good ship Roosevelt. We are distinctly informed in a double-page advertisement as to the make of camera used by Peary in the north. We know the kind of pencils he used in writing his records, although the signature to this testimonial appears to have been written with pen and ink. Another communication, now made public, tells how he investigated the merits of various kinds of aluminum cooking utensils, finally deciding on a certain brand as the best.

After reading another testimonial published, we know what kind of rifle and cartridge should be used in polar expeditions. On the next page Peary is quoted as praising a certain New York department store, where one may "equip himself for an arctic trip." The sledge that carried Peary to the pole prints the testimony of the explorer.

We know the brand of tobacco which "assisted materially in passing a long winter night." The "ideal disinfectant and deodorant" had to be satisfied with a testimonial from the captain of the Roosevelt, his chief apparently suffering from writer's cramp. Mr. Peary knew he would have to have a shaving brush that would last, so he selected a certain superior kind, and testifies to its merits. Another letter praises the merits of a certain kind of powder-gun, not face.

From the advertising columns we learn Peary's preference in breakfast foods, and s-s-s-h—the kind of underwear he wore. And the kind of watches carried by Peary and his comrades is by no means a secret.

The public is left in doubt as regards but a very few things. We do not know the variety of gumdrops he used, the whisky he drank or the soap wherewith he washed himself. But, mayhap, this information will come out in due time.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont has engaged a suite at the Ten Eyck, Albany, from next Saturday, and intends to spend a month in the capital city carrying on a suffrage campaign among the legislators and prominent politicians. She will make this a special campaign, and is arranging to give a series of receptions and teas for the "votes for women" propaganda.

A convention of the Laymen's Missionary movement is to be held in this city next week. It is in connection with a world-wide movement, which will culminate in May in Chicago. It is unconnected with any church and is in the hands of laymen. Its avowed object is the christianizing of the entire world within the present generation. A sum of $30,000,000 has been asked,

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a brick dust sediment, or setting, stringy or milky appearance often indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back are also symptoms that tell you the kidneys and bladder are out of order and need attention.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills almost every wish in correcting rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. Corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper and remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

for, and every christian country has assumed a part of this burden. It seeks to aid both native and foreign missions and work through the existing agencies. It has not created any new organization, and neither collects nor administers funds, but it endeavors to arouse the different churches to support the missions already sent out by their bodies.

The idea behind the movement is that the history of the world is moving in such a way as to open the door to missions, and that if the opportunity is not seized at once no such favorable opening may again be offered.

Statistics compiled from the New York Social Register for 1910 show that the social center of the city remains this year, as last, in the neighborhood of Sixty-second street and Madison avenue. This indicates a pause in the uptown movement of prominent families, for ever since 1890, when the center was found to be at Thirty-ninth street and Fifth avenue, it has been advancing northward at the rate of one and sometimes two blocks a year.

In December, 1905, it was at Fifty-eighth street, and it was thought the wide stretch of Central park would have an effect preventing it going further up town, but it jumped in 1906 to Sixty-second street, and this year's figures show it to be stationary for the first time in the last twenty years.

When the new Globe theater, at Broadway and Forty-second street, opens Monday, under the management of Charles B. Dillingham, the theater-going public will see a house with several novel ideas. The principal contrivance is one by which the theater may be made an open-air place of amusement when desired.

There is a large oval panel in the ceiling which can be thrown open so that the audience may see the sky above. This permits the extension of the season into the summer months.

Another feature is the accommodations provided for the actors. All dressing rooms are exceptionally large and a number of them are provided with shower baths.

The opening will be Montgomery & Stone, in "The Old Town," by George Ade and Gustav Lunders.

DEMAND WAS REFUSED

Three Black Hand Men Slay Italian Chicago Merchant.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—Failing to comply with a demand for $5,000 contained in letters signed "The Black Hand," which he received through the mail some time ago, B. Sine, aged 60, an Italian merchant, was shot and instantly killed by three men yesterday morning while he lay asleep in the rear of his store. The assailants escaped before the police arrived.

As Sine's wife cowered under a revolver held near her face by one of the three masked men who entered the house, her husband was thrown to the floor and fired at repeatedly. He was shot through the head and heart.

Since receiving the threatening letters Sine is said to have carried a revolver and slept with a shotgun, stiletto and revolver at his bedside. The masked men evidently knew of these precautions, as they threw him from his bed before he was awakened, thus putting the weapons out of his reach.

Aids Nature

The great success of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in curing weak stomachs, wasted bodies, weak lungs, and obstinate and lingering coughs, is based on the recognition of the fundamental truth that "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies Nature with body-building, tissue-repairing, muscle-making materials, in condensed and concentrated form. With this help Nature supplies the necessary strength to the stomach to digest food, build up the body and thereby throw off lingering obstinate coughs. The "Discovery" re-establishes the digestive and nutritive organs in sound health, purifies and enriches the blood, and nourishes the nerves—in short establishes sound vigorous health.

If your dealer offers something "just as good," it is probably better FOR HIM—it pays better. But you are thinking of the cure not the profit, so there's nothing "just as good" for you. Say so.

THE SCHOOL GIRL

BACK TO HER STUDIES, TAKING WITH HER A NUMBER OF NEW GOWNS.

SHE SPENT HOLIDAYS AT HOME

Had a Rattling Good Time, of Course, but It's "Dig" Now—Description of Some of the New Garments Provided.

(By Catherine Mann-Payzant.)

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

New York, Jan. 7.—The school girl has gone back to the halls of learning after the holidays, and, of course, it is quite plain that she must have a few more gowns and such necessities.

There will be first in consideration a few new school gowns for general wear, which should consist of a shirt waist suit for the class room, an outdoor suit and a shirt waist. There might be two shirt waist suits, one heavy and one of light material.

One of the best materials for the class room is serge, and next to it comes mohair, both of which materials have splendid wearing qualities.

The light weight suit may be of pongee or cashmere or henrietta. For wear with these there should be some fine, pretty neckwear, which will make these gowns of usefulness quite dressy enough.

The semi-princess and coat-dress have become quite popular among women and misses, and a smart coat-dress, semi-fitting, of brown serge consists of a seven-gored princess, upper part lengthened by a plaited flounce at the bottom, with a straight lower edge, measuring about four and one-eighth, with the plaits drawn out.

The model closes at the front with a slightly open neck filled in with a white tucked chemise. Velvet cuffs and collar might be added for a more dressy effect, if liked, with either a white or colored chemise, and of the last it would be well to add several Buttons and button holes are used for fastening, and three smaller buttons are used on the sleeve above the cuff. For such a heavy material as serge this would be a more suitable model.

The lightweight material could be made by a model that has a Russian blouse and a peplum and a skirt. The blouse is very plain as to cut, but is made dressy by a square neck for wear with lace chemisettes.

A body lining is used, and the sleeves are of three-quarter length, below which are those of lace. To the body is attached the peplum, which falls straight and fitted as close as the skirt. The skirt is seamed. Both the blouse and the peplum fasten on the left side, decorated with groups of buttons and silk loops. The square outline down the two sides of the opening and around the bottom of the peplum and the belt are made of fancy banding. A little lace jabot ornaments the left side of the opening. This model for spring wear would be made in a pongee.

Skirts made in the moyenage mode are not only fashionable, but suitable for such wear as a girl must put on them in her walk abroad or for her sports at school.

The model consists of a five-gored upper part, with a back habit, which is lengthened by a plaited flounce, with a straight lower edge measuring about four and a half yards.

At the joining of the upper part and the flounce was laid a fold and the material for the original of the description was developed from a wide wide diagonal.

The shirt waist worn with the skirt was of silk to match the skirt, a blue, laid in inverted plaits fastened in the front, having long, close sleeves with pointed ends, that fell over the hands, and a neck finish of an embroidered collar and pretty jabot.

When worn for indoor sports not requiring a regular costume some girls prefer a waist that has a round neck and a little white shallow Dutch collar and seven-eighths sleeves. Several white waists could be added to the outfit also.

A new coat for the colder weather may be needed, and one of the following cloths that imitate Parisian lamb or caracul or some other fur would make an especially warm coat and one that can be worn on all occasions.

Broadcloth, with a moire or bengaline collar and cuffs, would be dressy. Coats with plaited sections inserted at the sides have proved popular and are often arranged under a strap that is apparently held in place by a button on each end.

Of course, it is needless to say that a rain coat or a storm coat is a necessity for the school girl as well as for other women.

As it is the custom in most schools for the girls to change their frocks for the last meal of the day, corresponding to dressing for dinner, a dress of wool batiste, challis or nun's veiling would be an appropriate color and should be a color not too easily soiled.

A gray challis, having a small design in purple, was chosen for such a gown, with a skirt having groups of plaits, and over this was a tunic of the goods, the front and back carried up over the shoulders in suspenders over a white waist beneath.

No better style for the afternoon gowns can be found than in the semi-princess styles, with their plaited skirts and front panels joined to a waist made fancy by its open neck and lace finish.

A party dress must, of course, be provided. Soft nets are liked for such gowns, and one which had just been made for a returning student for wear during the holiday season had a foundation of silk that was almost a gown in itself; and over this was laid a soft silk net, gathered into the waist under a pink satin belt tied in front and hanging in long ends at the sides.

A band of lace laid in rindyles at the knees covered the junction of a net flounce. The bodice that was laid on the foundation was topped with a shallow yoke of heavy lace, above which was the embroidered net chemise. The sleeves were short and laid in tucks, finished with a band of the heavy lace, with undersleeves of the embroidered net which came to the wrists.

A crepe de chine gown was provided for this young woman for theater wear or concerts that would be given at the school when she returned. This gown was most simple, having a full skirt drawn in at the waist by gathers which formed the girle, decorated with a huge bow of velvet at the left side.

The bottom of the skirt was laid in three tucks and two at the knees. The upper part of the bodice was gathered softly into a yoke of lace without a collar, and the sleeves were of elbow length, finished with a lace cuff.

A pretty gown for wear on Sunday was also provided for the same young woman and was of dark green pongee, having a plain seven-gored skirt, with two of the folds on the lower part. The round baby waist was finished with a yoke of silk covered with embroidered lace, topped with a bone collar.

Over the shoulders were pieces of silk laid on the revers and also covered with the lace. The sleeves were in three pieces, an undersleeve of lace and two portions, an under and upper part that partially covered the undersleeve and laced together with a silk cord over the lace. A velvet girle, very narrow, laid about the waist.

Streator, Ill., Jan. 7.—In order that they might raise funds with which to celebrate New Year's, Evan Evans, 11 years old, a nephew of "Honey Boy" Evans, placed his 6-year-old brother, Arthur, in a sack and sold him to a local junk firm.

At the rate which is paid for old rags the young brother brought 17 cents, which amount the older brother pocketed.

The boy then uttered a yell, but when released made his escape and joined the brother down the street.

SHIPBUILDING RECORD

Newport News Workmen Made It On the Steamer Bear.

Newport News, Va., Jan. 7.—A new time record for the construction of freight and passenger steamers in the coast yards of the United States has been made by the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company in building the big freight and passenger steamer Bear for the San Francisco and Portland Steamship company.

The first keel plate for this ship was laid on June 15 last. The actual time consumed in her construction was six months and twenty-four days, or just 186 working days.

Shipbuilders here regard this as unusually rapid construction, and claim that the British yards do no faster work on merchant ships of the same size and design.

COLLEGE FIRE HEROINE

Gives Alarm and Helps Transfer Forty Patients to Safety.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 7.—Forty patients were removed from the Virginia hospital through sleet and rain at 4 o'clock yesterday morning while fire raged next door in the University College of Medicine. The college building, a three-story brick structure, was wrecked, entailing an estimated loss of $200,000.

A 19-year-old nurse, Miss Bessie C. Arnold, of Hanover county, was the heroine of the hour. Discovering the flames in the dental department, located on the third floor of the college building adjoining, Miss Arnold gave the alarm, aroused all the doctors in the hospital, and then began removing patients to a place of safety in nearby residences.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—even from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a stupefying poison. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good! Very good! Hereafter for this very reason mothers, and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's labels—and none in the medicine, else it must be law on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance then, particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding

QUICK RELIEF OF ITCHING ECZEMA

Was Surprising—Inflammation Reduced in a Few Hours and Cure Soon Followed—Boy's Torture Had Been Intense for Years—Friend's Child had Eczema, Too.

MOTHER TELLS HOW CUTICURA CURED BOTH

"When my boy was six years old, he suffered terribly with eczema. He could neither sit still nor lie quietly in bed, for the itching was dreadful. He would irritate spots by scratching with his nails and that only made them worse. A doctor treated him and we tried almost everything, but the eczema seemed to spread. It started in a small place on the lower extremities and spread for two years until it very nearly covered the back part of his leg to the knee.

"Finally I got Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Pills and gave them according to directions. I used them in the morning and that evening, before I put my boy to bed. I used them again and the improvement even in those few hours was surprising, the inflammation seemed to be so much less. I used two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, the same of the Pills and the Soap and my boy was cured. My son is now in his seventeenth year and he has never had a return of the eczema.

"I took care of a friend's child that had eczema on its face and limbs and I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. They acted on the child just as they did on my son and it has never returned. I would recommend the Cuticura Remedy to anyone. Mrs. A. J. Cochran, 1823 Columbia Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 20, 1909."

FOR SKIN HUMORS

Torturing, disfiguring patches of humor on the skin, scalp or hands are instantly relieved and speedily cured, in the majority of cases, by warm baths with Cuticura Soap and gentle anointings of Cuticura Ointment. PLAY AND PLAYERS

SOME OF THE BIG SUCCESSES ON THE GOTHAM STAGE PRESENT WEEK.

"A LITTLE BROTHER OF THE RICH"

The Audience Goes Into Hysterics and Sin Is Foiled—The Commanding Officer a Very Creditable Piece of Work.

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

By William S. Brewer.

New York, Jan. 7.—In "A Little Brother of the Rich" last night at Wallack's theatre, Joseph Medill Paterson and Harriet Ford made a contribution to divorce statistics which should set a pace even in New York. Only those in the play escaped being unhitched who had avoided taking the necessary preliminary step. With the apt phrase, "Marry in haste and divorce at leisure," as the moral emphasized throughout three racy acts any man might be justified in doubting Vincent Serrano's mental balance when even so charming an argument as Ida Conquest could convince him that matrimony was to be trusted.

With the exception of Miss Conquest, whose reputation remained unscathed, three game cocks and a stage cab were the only respectable members of the cast.

But if the people are unwholesome the play has the saving grace of over-reaching the intended satire on manners and morals of the wealthy and arriving at genuine burlesque.

When the atmosphere is murky with what Dr. Parkhurst so delicately terms "tandem polygamy," the audience goes into hysterics and sin is foiled.

The play runs smoothly and has its claim to be considered.

In the first act in the Savoy theatre last night a young army scoundrel, who wanted $1,000 to save him from wreck in Wall street, bargained crudely over a woman's good name with a mine owner out in Roosevelt City, Nevada. So opened Theodore Burt Sayre's melodrama in four acts, "The Commanding Officer." The woman was the young and pretty wife of the colonel commanding at Fort Butler, and the mine owner had been her lover before her marriage.

The colonel's wife had really been a little foolish in an absence of her husband which follows a morning's quarrel. Into her folly she drags a dear girl friend, so that at length two good names are involved. In such things "The Commanding Officer" abounds. It is melodrama pure and simple, depending on feverish climaxes for its life. By the simple measure of the effective curtain it is a creditable piece of work.

A lesson in selfishness is taught with many laughs and a tear or two in Francis Wilson's comedy, "The Bachelor's Baby," which he presented at the Criterion theatre. For a play written by its star this was remarkably well balanced.

Mr. Wilson played Thomas Beach, a bachelor. A five-year-old girl is thrust upon him by the death of his twin brother. Gradually the child wins his heart. A love story of another sort also has Beach for its central figure. It is a wonder that even a hardened bachelor like Beach could have withstood for a moment the winsomeness of Martha Calvert Beach, played by a little boy called Baby Davis on the program.

Wilson was Wilson, no one else, as Tom Beach, but the part's peculiarities fitted like a new glove and the union was thoroughly satisfactory.

George Lashwood, whom William Morris is sending over his circuit, is the one great vaudeville catch of the season. His versatility is unlimited and he goes from Beau Brummel to the tough, making distinct scores in all of his impersonations. He bids fair to be another Harry Lauder money-maker for his enterprising manager.

TAKE TWO.

Having been acted at the Stuyvesant theatre for nearly a year, it might be assumed that Eugene Walter's "The Easiest Way" had been seen by every one in New York interested in that kind of play. Nevertheless, its transfer to the Academy of Music brought out an audience that almost filled the big house.

The acting was the same as it has been at all times, with Miss Frances Starr as Laura Murdock, and Edward H. Robins, Joseph Kilgour and William Sampson as her chief assistants.

Fannie Ward has scored heavily in the emotional role of Muriel Van Allen, in the new play, "Van Allen's Wife," by Forrest Halsey and Lee Arthur, the first performance of which was given in Rochester last week.

Heretofore Miss Ward has played only the lighter dramatic roles before American audiences, but in London, where she appeared in the heavier roles, a brilliant future was predicted for her by the critics. In "Van Allen's Wife" she fulfills every promise, meeting every demand made on her for the strong, virile acting that the part requires. Her achievement means the rise of a young and beautiful emotional actress, a dearth of whom is so noticeable today on the native stage.

Frank Daniels, in "The Belle of Brittany," at Daly's theatre, bids fair to have even a greater success than that enjoyed by Thomas T. Powers last season at the Casino. In "Havana," which was also an English musical production, Americanized under the Shubert management. In fact, "The Belle of Brittany" at Daly's may be described as the legitimate successor of "Havana" as the English musical comedy success of the theatrical year in the American metropolis.

Mr. Daniels, in all his long and successful career, has never had a part so thoroughly legitimate and so absolutely suited to his methods. "The Doggie and the Bone," sung by Elsa Ryan and a chorus of "postillions," is undoubtedly going to take the place of the "Hello People" number of "Havana" as the song hit of the current season.

New York has never seen any musical comedy spectacle to compare with Lew Field's production of "The Midnight Sons," which opened in the balmy days of June, and which will still be here through sleighing time. It broke the record for openings at the Broadway on the very first night, and it has continued a record-wreck ever since.

The entire class of 1912 at Fordham Law School attended the performance of "His Name on the Door," which is playing at the Garden theatre, to get Frank Lord's sidelights on legal methods, as he had written them in his play of "Fake Insurance."

The Lieblers have selected "A Certain Party" as the name for the new comedy by Edward W. Townsend and Frank Ward O'Malley, in which Miss Mabel Hite will be seen as a star. Rehearsals will begin this week. In the cast will be her husband, Michael Donlin, known to every baseball fan in the country as "Mike."

Marie Tempest has obtained her release from a contract calling for her appearance in May, and will go on tour after her limited engagement of

INDIGESTION WILL VANISH

DYSPEPSIA, HEARTBURN, GAS AND MISERY FROM STOMACH GOES.

A CURE WAITING FOR ANY SUFFERER

Out-of-Order Stomachs Feel Fine Five Diapiesin Which Cures a Million Bad Stomachs Each Year.

Take your sour, out-of-order stomach—or maybe you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapiesin and let you eat one 22-grain Tri-angle and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak; there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle, and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapiesin.

APPEAL IN NOTED CASE

Refused Communion to Man Who Married Wife's Sister.

London, Jan. 7.—A hearing is set for today in the final appeal in the case of Bannister vs. Thompson, involving the validity of the famous "deceased wife's sister" law.

At the earlier appeal, the court unanimously decided that Canon Thompson, Vicar of Eaton, Norwich, had no right to refuse communion to Mr. and Mrs. Bannister because the former had married his deceased wife's sister.

In delivering his judgment the Master of the Rolls said it was impossible to conceive that parliament could not authorize any marriage which was by an earlier statute deemed to be incestuous to be solemnized according to our religion.

Lord Justice Moulton concurred. There was something revolting, he said, to reverential and religious feeling in the thought that a clergyman should be entitled to say, "Though you are not living in sin, I hold you constructively 'open and notorious evil livers,' and therefore I will drive you from the Lord's table."

Have you a weak throat? If so, you cannot be too careful. You cannot begin treatment too early. Each cold makes you more liable to another and the last is always the harder to cure. If you will take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the outset you will be saved much trouble. Sold by All Dealers.

Not long ago I saw a man trying to pay some money to Mr. Sweeney and insisting that the debt was just Sweeney knew nothing of the transaction, while Baker remembered the account without any trouble.
